More about Marcy Baer:

Marcy has been a lifetime student of the Horse. She has over 40 years experience in horse management, training horses and working with riders and drivers. At her farm in central Vermont she has bred and raised her beloved Norwegian Fjord Horses and Dales Ponies. She has experience working with baby and young horses, teaching them with patient, gentle methods the lessons that create a foundation for a quality lifelong partnership with humans. Marcy has trained horses to high levels of development in several disciplines including carriage driving, distance riding and driving, trail, draft and dressage. She brings a depth and diversity of experience and knowledge to her teaching and training. Marcy is an Advanced Practitioner/Clinician in the Linda Tellington Jones Equine Awareness Method - a gentle, comprehensive and integrative approach to working with horses. Marcy is currently enrolled in Philippe Karl's School of Leжерete teachers course to learn, in depth, the principles of Classical French dressage. Marcy uses these techniques to gradually and systematically develop horses for any discipline. She is devoted to helping students find lightness and harmony in their partnership with their horses. Marcy uses a wholistic approach that considers the body, mind and spirit of the horse and the unique and individual partnership of horse and rider. No matter your style of riding, the tack that you use, the breed of horse you ride/drive or your level of experience, Marcy is dedicated to sharing her knowledge and offers a gentle and thoughtful way to help riders and horses find balance, confidence, connection, and joy.
